HEAT: THE ART AND SCIENCE OF LIFE

When I started at NYU, I majored in Film and Television at Tisch. I fell in love with movies and how much research, world-building, and attention to detail it takes to create something worthwhile. But, while there, I was drawn to a liberal arts education (with a focus on accessibility, studio art, climate change, and innovation). So, I'm happy to let you know I recently graduated from NYU's Gallatin School of Individualized Study, and I majored in Heat: The Art and Science of Life!

SO... WHAT ARE MY SKILLS?

Creative Problem Solver

I utilize my experience as an artist and designer to think quickly on my feet. I am a glass, trash, and ceramics artist, so I can look at something an engineer might view as waste as something valuable.

Communication

As a student ambassador, I honed my ability to think and talk quickly by leading tours, presentations, question-and-answer sessions, and Zoom information sessions for prospective students and parents. This led to my selection as the NYU Gallatin School Student Speaker at the May 2024 Graduation.

Organization

Staying organized is key to managing deadlines, so I always prioritize this. I famously finished almost all of my final projects in college one week before the last week of class. I also spend time helping my mother and grandmother organize their lives (in person and online).

STRENGTHS

RESEARCH

Completed archival research internationally, as well as in NYC at the Met. I am passionate about research and education for the betterment of society.

DESIGN

Experience with 3D modeling, mold making, sculpture, glass blowing, neon bending, woodworking, metalsmithing, printmaking, lost wax casting, Adobe Creative Cloud, and more.

COPYWRITING

Written for the NYU Gallatin quarterly newspaper, a senior thesis, multiple grant applications, critical essays, created lesson plans, ad campaigns, cultural reviews, etc.

ASSISTING

I have been an artists' assistant, a teacher's assistant, a student assistant to the Office of the President of NYU, and a communication assistant. Whatever you need, I got it!
